ROCKFORD PAIN CENTER, LTD.

Reference Letter – Schmeling Construction

In 2020 RPC had outgrown its existing office space and was in desperate need of a larger more modern clinical facility. We did our due diligence and looked at a number of General Contractors within the Northern Illinois region. After an exhaustive vetting process we decided that the best company for the job was Schmeling construction in Rockford Illinois.

Our decision was based on Schmeling's impeccable reputation for getting projects done on time and on budget along with their extensive expertise in healthcare related building projects. We found their organizational skills and hands-on involvement throughout the project to be key factors in meeting these expectations. It was especially impressive that they were able to meet timelines in the face of Covid 19 restrictions and supply chain disruptions throughout the building industry.

At the conclusion of the project I can say unequivocally that we were extremely pleased with all aspects of the building process from architectural involvement and permitting to subcontractor management the experience was a pleasant one from start to finish. I attribute most of this to Steve and Peter Schmelings' unwavering dedication to the success of the project and genuine concern in looking out for our best interests.

There are very few businesses that I would recommend without hesitation but I can say unequivocally that Schmeling construction has my highest regards.

Thank you Steve and Peter for a job well done!
